

Presbytery Network Structure

There are times when a particular mission effort is larger than one congregation. Congregations, members, or presbyters may combine their energies in partnership with the Presbytery as a Network to accomplish that mission.

Why would an informal network wish to become a formal one? Several reasons are possible. A group may desire one or more of the following: 1) to receive explicit/implicit endorsement of the presbytery; 2) to gain access to presbytery channels of communication; 3) to offer services [training, workshops, retreats, etc.] to our presbytery; or 4) to receive funding from the presbytery for its work.

How do networks differ from committees? Networks are formed based upon the passions of those participating in them and in concert with the presbytery's goals for ministry and mission. Networks are not filled by nominees from presbytery, but voluntarily by persons presenting themselves to serve. Networks are not required to maintain any particular size or composition. Networks are not staffed by presbytery personnel and are free to emerge when a need is identified or disperse when the work is complete.

Networks help us to empower emerging ministries, allow us to become a more passion-driven, presbyter-led presbytery, and provide us with new opportunities to serve Christ together.

Designating Formal Networks

Formal networks are those officially sanctioned by Presbytery through the Networks Support and Grants Committee. The Presbytery designates Networks to support them and provide them with Presbytery resources. Designated Networks offer the Presbytery an opportunity to focus on ministry and mission instead of structure.

Funding Requests & Reimbursement

Funds to support the work of our Networks are budgeted annually in the Presbytery's operating budget. The Network Support and Grants Committee receives annual Network Funding requests and apportions the Presbytery's budgeted Network funds accordingly, at the committee's discretion, with prayer and discernment. Once approved, Network Support monies are paid out to Networks as reimbursement for ministry expense using Network Expense vouchers. We strongly encourage multiple funding sources that may include congregational support, individual donors, community foundations, other grants, etc. Availability of budgeted Network funds one year for any Network does not presume financial support in subsequent years.

Requests for financial aid can be submitted with an initial request for designation as a Network or at any time a Network can describe a budget or spending plan. 2025 requests for Network support funding are to be submitted by October 22, 2024. Networks receive financial aid in order to assist the Presbytery in accomplishing its mission and goals.
